

Reserving a DOI

You might want to receive a DOI (Digital Object Identifier) for your publication or dataset before actually making it available via the Research Collection. Reserving a DOI in the Research Collection enables you to integrate the DOI into your written document or to cite the publication/dataset in a paper that is still in the publication process. Please proceed as follows.

Step 1: Reserve a DOI
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Click Submit on the Research Collection home page.</li><li>• If you weren't already logged in, you will need to sign in with your nethz account now.</li></ul>
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Click the Start a new submission button.</li></ul>
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Select the publication type from the dropdown.</li></ul>

- In the Describe step, please fill in at least all mandatory fields.

Correct one of these

- You will receive an automatically generated confirmation mail.
- The email contains the DOI that was reserved for your item.

A DOI was generated and reserved for this item: 10.3929/ethz-b-000163780

Step 2: Upload File(s)

- When your text or data are ready to be uploaded, login to the Research Collection with your netzh account.

The screenshot shows the ETH Zürich Research Collection homepage. At the top, there's a dark blue header with the ETH Zürich logo and navigation links for 'Login', 'Help', and 'Deutsch'. Below the header is a search bar. The main content area is divided into several sections: 'Home', 'Browse' (with sub-sections for Organisational Units, Publication Types, and Authors), 'Publish' (with 'My Submissions'), and 'Statistics' (with 'Downloads by Country', 'Most Popular Items', and 'Most Popular Authors'). The central focus is the 'Repository for Publications and Research Data' section, which includes a search bar, a 'Submit' button with a green checkmark, and a 'Manual' button with a document icon. Below this, there are news snippets: 'oaFindr – the easy way to find Open Access publications on the Knowledge Portal', 'Horizon 2020: Open Research Data from 2017 on', and 'Introduction of ORCID at ETH Zurich'. At the bottom, there's a 'Recently Added' section with a link to 'A comprehensive mechano-physiological cycling model'.

- Open the confirmation mail that contains your DOI and follow the link to your item in the Research Collection.

Your submission has been successfully imported: <http://hdl.handle.net/20.500.11850/163780>

- Click on the Edit icon and choose the option Upload Fulltext /Dataset

Usage permission

This step describes the terms for submitting and using a work in ETH Zurich's repository.

Please grant ETH-Bibliothek permission to use the work at the bottom of the page. If you are not the copyright or rights holder, see sections 1.5 and 1.6.

TERMS FOR SUBMITTING AND USING A WORK

- Rights to the work
  - The copyright or rights holder declares that he/she has the right to provide the work for use in ETH Zurich's repository.
  - He/she also declares that no third-party rights are infringed by the use granted under section 2.

- If you wish, you can now additionally grant an end user license (cf. Creative Commons Licenses and Licensing Software).
- Click the Complete submission button.

License your Work

You now have the option of stipulating the extent to which others can re-use your work by issuing a Creative Commons license (for publications and research data) or open source license (for software). A license can be issued if:

- You created the work's contents and hold the sole usage rights to the work, and these have not been transferred to a third party OR
- the work has already been published under a Creative Commons/open source license and therefore requires the same licensing.

Please also bear in mind:

- Creative Commons and open source licenses cannot be revoked or changed.
- When licensing software, authorisation must be obtained from ETH Transfer.
- If possible, the license should be integrated into the work.

Please select the desired license from the dropdown menu. If you do not wish to issue an end-user license, please select In Copyright – Non-Commercial Use Permitted.

- Your submission is now complete .

Although the message displayed says so, you will not receive another confirmation mail at this stage, because your item has already been imported during the original submission process.

- Your file (s) will be made available according to the chosen access rights once the internal review process is finished.

Submission complete

Your submission has been successfully imported. A confirmation has been sent to your email address which includes the DOI that has been reserved for this item.

Please note that the submission is currently under review and that full texts and other uploaded digital objects will not be visible to external users until approved by Research Collection staff.
